Call for Papers

The 15th International Workshop on Nonlinear Dynamics of Electronic Systems (NDES 2007) will be held on July 23rd–26th 2007, at the Shikoku University Community Plaza, Tokushima, Japan. This conference aims to stimulate and enable scientists from all over the world to exchange knowledge and ideas in the field of nonlinear dynamics and its applications. Nonlinear phenomena are observed in diverse areas such as physics, biology, economics, ecology, electronics and computer science. The workshop will present cutting-edge research in this highly active field and explore new perspectives for nonlinear dynamics in interdisciplinary applications. Further, the traditional topics of nonlinear circuits, data analysis and also applications to cognitive science will be considered.

NDES 2007 is actually the 15th in a series of international specialist workshops, the first of which took place in Dresden in 1993. From its origins, the NDES has blossomed into a truly international event, the largest of its kind in Europe. NDES 2007 will be the first opportunity to organize NDES far away from Europe. The workshop shall bring together specialists in mathematical, natural and engineering sciences in order to provide an opportunity to meet in a low-cost informal setting to address new theoretical and practical results, novel analysis and design methods in nonlinear dynamic systems and circuits and to discuss open problems in nonlinear science.

Fields of interest are (not limited to):

- theories and numerical analysis of nonlinear circuits and systems
- modeling and simulations of nonlinear circuits and systems
- applications of nonlinear dynamics
- nonlinear signal processing
- time-series analysis
- bifurcation phenomena
- controlling chaos, chaos synchronization
- chaos applications
- nonlinear oscillations
- neuro dynamics
